70,000 pupils to benefit from NSSF 7 Hills Run

On average, 50% of the Government Grant Aided Primary Schools don't meet the required standard, according to records from KECA. The NSSF Kampala Race 7 Hills Run is aimed at raising those schools that will be channelled to selected Kampala schools towards improving their sanitation and environmental structures.

At least 70,000 school-going children in Kampala Capital City Authority schools are expected to benefit from proceeds of the NSSF Kampala Race 7 Hills Run.

The race is aimed at raising money and funds that will be channelled to selected Kampala schools towards improving their sanitation and environmental structures.

"This initiative is part of our strategy to find a solution for the needs of our students who subscribe with NSSF and also the community in which we do our business, so it is a CSR opportunity for us," NSSF Managing Director Richard Kamukama said.

"By raising the money we will be able to help so many children. We are using this as a vehicle which will progressively raise funds and contribute to the betterment of teaching in these schools. Children need a safe, healthy and conducive environment to realize their potential in their education," Kamukama said.

The race is being done by National Social Security Fund in partnership with Kampala Seven Hills Harriers, a club of runners comprising of professionals from different disciplines who on Wednesday launched a campaign around the traditional hill of Kampala.

The race will have several participants. They include: KECA, National Music Conservatory, Bank, Swaziland Club, Karamoja Music, Capital Markets Authority, Insurance.

Layouts

Different newspapers and articles have different ways of setting out information visually. Look at the different layouts and discuss what you do and don't like about them.

Writing Time

Now that you know what you need in an article it is time to get writing. Follow the steps to help you get started.

1

Think of an issue, person or topic you think your reader will enjoy.

2

Research, find facts, interview experts and people about their opinions.

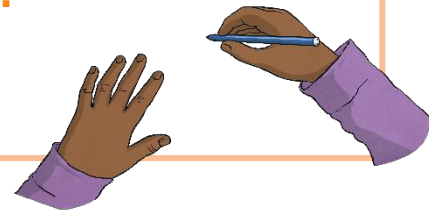

3

Record notes as you go (this will help you when it's time to write).

4

Plan your writing using a template.
